2 THE CLERK: Civil cause for a status conference, CV-
3 05-3212, United States of America v. International 4 Longshoremen's, et al., Magistrate Judge Pohorelsky presiding.

5 THE COURT: Good afternoon. Sorry to keep you 6 waiting. There have been some significant developments as 7 everybody is aware in this case which it strikes me renders 8 the motion for protective order moot. It seems to me that at 9 this point the defendants don't care about getting that 10 information. Am I right?

11 MALE VOICE: At this point, Your Honor, that's 12 correct.

13 THE COURT: So why do I need to decide it? I mean
14 the case -- if the case is resurrected by an amended complaint 15 that Judge -- Glasser, pardon me. It's been a long day.
16 Glasser. That Judge Glasser finds sufficient then the 17 plaintiff -- the defendant is going to be interested in the 18 information then I've got to decide it but unless -- until 19 that happens I don't have to decide it and I'll be honest with 20 you, I've got other things to do. So does anybody disagree 21 with that?

22 MR. HAYES: Your Honor, Chief Justice -- Richard 23 Hayes for the United States, Your Honor. It's been a long day
24 for all of us. Of course the United States has recognized 25 that there has been a change in the procedural posture of this

1 case since our last conference. The United States does 2 anticipate currently consistent with Judge Glasser's November 3 1 order filing an amended complaint and certainly within the 4 time frame directed by Judge Glasser in his order. At such 5 time the United States anticipates that it would once again be 6 necessary or perhaps the United States is incorrect in its 7 assumption, but anticipates that it would once again be 8 seeking a protective order with respect to the Department of 9 Labor EPSA documents and the United States of course would not 10 disagree with the Court's suggestion that at least at this 11 point the matter is either moot or not yet ripe depending upon 12 how one looks at things.

13 There is also, Your Honor, the pending application, 14 and of course Your Honor is going to get to this but if I may, 15 the pending application with respect to the deposition of John 16 Bowers. The United States respectfully suggests that that is 17 perhaps of a different --

18 THE COURT: That's why I didn't include both 19 applications in the mootness question -- I mean on the 20 mootness -- in the mootness category because it's not entirely 21 moot in light of the fact that you intend to file an amended 22 complaint.

23 I think it does change the calculus though about -- 24 nobody -- I'll ask you to address that, whether you think it 25 does and if so how. Since it's the Government's application --

1 it's probably quicker for me to ask the defendants.

2 Let's accept for the moment that it's not entirely 3 moot because there's at least a possibility the case would 4 proceed and even in the absence of a complaint a party can 5 seek depositions to perpetuate testimony. Here we're in a 6 slightly different position. I mean we're in a position where 7 we say in between complaints. So how should it change the 8 calculus, if at all, and does it change any of your arguments?
9 Because all of you submitted arguments on this point before 10 the motion to dismiss was granted.

11 [Mr. Wing away from microphone and inaudible at times.]

12 MR. WING: That is correct, Your Honor. John Wing
13 for Mr. Bowers. [Inaudible] changes are arguments in this 14 respect and that is all of our arguments were premised on the 15 fact that if the complaint was dismissed there was no need for 16 a deposition. We actually still believe that notwithstanding 17 the Government's stated intention to file a new complaint and 18 it's because there are many things that may happen between now 19 and when we get this complaint that we see no reason for the 20 Court to consider his application today.

21 First of all, Your Honor, we have every intention to 22 try and dissuade the Government that at least filing a new 23 complaint against John Bowers would be an additional waste of 24 their time and energies and resources. Mr. Goldstein had 25 written a letter to Mr. Hayes requesting an opportunity to 1 meet with him and discuss that issue. I intend to do the 2 exactly the same. Mr. Hayes advised Mr. Goldstein today that 3 he wasn't -- that there wasn't going to be any meeting at 4 least in his office but Mr. Goldstein has asked -- not just 5 asked but plaintiffs to go down and talk with the people in 6 the Department of Justice about this issue and this case and 7 we have every intention of doing the same.

8 There's another thing [inaudible] that Your Honor
9 may not be aware of and that is when this case was brought Mr.
10 Bowers was the president of the ILA and there was an effort by 11 the Government to relieve him of that position. He retired 12 from that position last July. He is now what they call 13 president of [inaudible] but [inaudible] position within the 14 ILA and that is a changed circumstance that I think will at 15 least interest -- might decide that this case should not be 16 [inaudible].

17 In addition, although there's no way to argue the 18 facts of the case [inaudible] Court, the fact of the matter
19 is, Judge, we really believe and for reasons that were set 20 forth in a motion [inaudible], that there is no case against 21 John Bowers and you may know from [inaudible] so far that they 22 did bring essentially this case. They've added on some stuff 23 but they did bring essentially this case in a criminal 24 [inaudible] and everybody got acquitted except [inaudible] who 25 pleaded and then got a probationary sentence. Everybody got

1 acquitted, we would submit, [inaudible] substantial case here.

2 Mr. Bowers in that criminal matter he was not named 3 as a defendant. He was actually and it's been stated by the 4 Government on more than one occasion, a victim of a primary
5 allegation [inaudible]. Judge Glasser's opinion as Your Honor 6 probably knows refer to the somewhat [inaudible] defendant's 7 [inaudible] victim [inaudible] participant [inaudible].

8 Moreover, Your Honor, I think we should -- it would 9 make sense if we wait and see what is in this complaint which 10 we assume will be somewhat different from the last one. But 11 we don't know now who the defendants will be in that 12 complaint. We don't know now what the allegations will be in 13 that complaint. Certainly there were comments made by Judge
14 Glasser in both the oral argument and in his written opinion
15 suggesting that much of what was in the original complaint
16 would be subject to a Rule 12(f) motion to strike because it 17 was irrelevant and immaterial. I don't know how you would go 18 about having a deposition take place before you know what 19 would properly be the subject of questioning at such a 20 deposition. Certainly now I don't think we know that.

21 On top of everything else, Judge, it's been stated 22 in the papers on every application the Government has made to 23 do this [inaudible] position that to do this deposition would 24 be enormously expensive not just for Mr. Bowers but for all of 25 the nominal defendants who to some degree have been referred

1 to as really the victims of the alleged illegal conduct.
2 We're not talking about petty change. We're talking about 3 probably a minimum of three weeks of depositions with expenses 4 probably running [inaudible] thousands of dollars per 5 defendant. While it may mean nothing to the Government, 6 certainly they're not focused on what it's costing the 7 Government or the taxpayers, it does mean a lot to private 8 individuals.

9 For all of those reasons, Judge, I would 10 respectfully suggest that since we don't have a case yet that 11 if the Government wants to makes an application to take this 12 deposition that they make it down the line after we have not 13 only seen the complaint and seen what's in it but determine 14 what the proper things would be with respect to the complaint
15 which from my standpoint may very well be subject to another 16 motion to dismiss on additional grounds but I can't say that 17 without having actually seen the complaint.

18 MR. GOLDSTEIN: Your Honor, Howard Goldstein speaking
19 for the International Longshoremen's Association.

20 Your Honor, I won't repeat what we said in our 21 submission before Judge Glasser's decision, but in Judge 22 Glasser's decision, decisions including his decision on the 23 stay issue he made a couple of things very clear. One was his 24 concern for the expense that the nominal defendants would be 25 put to in discovery and the second thing he made clear was

1 that significant changes have to be made to the complaint if 2 it's going to be sustained.

3 As Mr. Wing just alluded to, we also made mention to 4 some of the allegations particularly going to the lengthy 5 history lesson that was in the complaint and seriously 6 questioned the relevance of that.

7 Until the Government files its complaint we don't 8 know what the shape of this case is and what the shape of 9 discovery should be. Yes, we could theoretically take 10 discovery on the old complaint and everything that's in it but 11 that would trigger the expense concerns that Judge Glasser was 12 concerned about and that we are very concerned about. Until 13 we know what this complaint looks like it doesn't make sense 14 for the lawyers to prepare for a deposition and to take a 15 deposition because the only deposition that's possible is the 16 most broad ranging deposition and the most expensive 17 deposition to cover our basis.

18 We also don't know who the defendants are. Since 19 the filing -- the ILA had its annual -- its quadrennial, every 20 four years convention in July. A number of the nominal 21 defendants, a number of the individuals retired at that time.
22 They're in this case solely because of their position as ILA
23 vice presidents. There are new vice presidents who are going 24 to be in their place. Maybe the Government will include those 25 people; maybe they won't but we don't even know who the

1 defendants are going to be in this case. Those defendants 2 would have a right at a deposition if defendants are added, 3 those defendants have a right to participate in the deposition 4 and some period of time for preparation in terms of reviewing 5 some of the material that's already been produced. So for a 6 lot of reasons until we have a complaint it really doesn't 7 make sense to go forward in our view.

8 I also wanted to just repeat what Mr. Wing just 9 said. I've always believed that it was neither wise as a legal 10 matter or a policy matter to bring this case against the 11 International. I sought an opportunity with the Eastern 12 District before this case was filed originally, convinced them
13 of that. They did not grant me the courtesy of an interview 14 or a meeting. The head of the racketeering section in the 15 Department of Justice did grant me that courtesy although 16 obviously he authorized or the Justice Department authorized 17 going forward again.

18 Anticipating that I might not get a meeting with Mr.
19 Hayes or the U.S. Attorney which I've requested, I also 20 advised Mr. Hayes in that letter that I would be separately
21 requesting a meeting with the Justice Department and that same 22 day I sent -- or I believe it was the next morning I sent a 23 letter to the head of the racketeering section in Justice 24 enclosing my letter to Mr. Hayes so that he knew that we were 25 seeking to speak to the Eastern District first and requesting

1 a meeting with him before the Justice Department made a final 2 decision.

3 I'd like the opportunity to have that meeting. I
4 think I will get it with Washington. They granted it to me
5 before and I'd like to have the opportunity to try to convince 6 the Justice Department why so many years after the events that 7 underlie this complaint and so many years after the ILA has 8 taken remedial steps on its own why this case should not be 9 brought. And for all of those reasons I think we should at 10 least wait until we see what we have to deal with, whether the 11 Justice Department authorizes going forward and see what the 12 content of a complaint is before we start the very expensive 13 process of preparing for and taking a deposition.

14 THE COURT: Anybody else want --

15 MR. CARUSO: If I may, Your Honor. MILA would like 16 to have a little bit of a say, Your Honor. I think when you 17 look at that decision there's --

18 THE COURT: At that decision --

19 MR. CARUSO: -- at that decision by Judge Glasser
20 that there is a clear and unmistakable indication that MILA 21 should not be in this case and until the Government files an 22 amended complaint obviously we don't think that fun money
23 should be expended in what could be a very long and arduous 24 deposition that could be very costly certainly for MILA when 25 MILA may not be in this case come the amended complaint.

1 The Government actually controls the timing because 2 I know they indicated that they're going to file that amended
3 complaint within the period of time set forth in Judge
4 Glasser's order but if they want to really move forward
5 quickly they can always file that amended complaint well 6 before that due date and at least give individual nominal 7 defendants like MILA the opportunity to know whether they're 8 in this case or not so they don't have to expend money 9 foolishly.

10 THE CLERK: Your Honor, that was Mr. Caruso speaking 11 I believe; right?

12 MR. CARUSO: That is correct.

13 MR. ROCCO: This is Victor Rocco for the Metro Funds
14 and MMMCA, Your Honor. Lest my silence be construed against 15 me I join in virtually everything that's been said.

16 THE COURT: Having received objections from virtually 17 all of the defendants, I am -- I don't think you're in danger
18 of having your silence construed --

19 MR. ROCCO: I didn't think so.

20 THE COURT: I didn't think that the granting of the 21 motion to dismiss had changed your view on the --

22 MR. ROCCO: It hasn't, Judge, and the only additional 23 dimension -- in fact, Mr. Caruso covered it, is that we 24 represent pension funds and benefit funds. We certainly don't 25 want to be put to the expense of what in effect at this point

1 is going to be a very, very unfocused marathon deposition of 2 Mr. Bowers. It will be enormously expensive. I think that 3 Mr. Wing is being conservative in what he's estimating the 4 cost of each defendant will be here. Thank you, Judge.

5 MR. CUNHA: If I may, Your Honor. I'm not going to 6 address --

7 THE COURT: Mr. Cunha.

8 MR. CUNHA: Yes, Your Honor. I'm not going to 9 address what are obviously very stark disagreements with 10 counsel for the defendants regarding the underlying merits of 11 the action or what may come or may not come from hypothetical 12 discussions that counsel would like to have with various 13 people in Washington. It is, as Mr. Hayes has indicated, the 14 present intention of the United States to file an amended 15 complaint. At this point we have not made nor do we 16 anticipate making a Rule 27 application to perpetuate Mr.
17 Bowers testimony in advance of that amended complaint. But we 18 do think that we should be in a position -- and to some extent 19 this is under the control of the defendants, once we file that 20 amended complaint to proceed with the deposition.

21 Now, obviously if the defendants will no longer be 22 seeking or will not seek a new stay of discovery at the time 23 we file that complaint, the issue is largely moot. They'll 24 proceed with the deposition at that time if as I suspect --

25 THE COURT: I think you should assume that the stay

1 of discovery will remain in place. I would consider it still 2 in place by Judge Glasser's order. I would not think that the 3 dismissal and the filing of a new complaint would have lifted, 4 acted to lift the stay.

5 MR. CUNHA: Well, in that case our position would 6 certainly be that we would continue to seek the deposition of 7 Mr. Bowers at that time. I think there are a couple of things 8 that bear emphasis. Although there's been mention about the 9 change in administration at the ILA, the fact remains that Mr.
10 Bowers is still the president in Meritus, a position for which 11 he remains well compensated, and the body of knowledge that he 12 has regarding the subject matter of this litigation is 13 unchanged regardless of his title. So I think the fact that 14 we would be seeking to take his deposition is wholly unaltered
15 by any changes that may have taken place in the administration
16 of the ILA.

17 Now, in terms of how best to proceed, I think it 18 would be counterproductive and duplicative for us at this 19 point to make a new application once the amended complaint is 20 filed. What we would prefer is to have the Court in a 21 position to rule on that application once the amended 22 complaint has been put before the Court. I think that would 23 save everyone time and it would allow us to have access to Mr.
24 Bowers testimony at the earliest possible opportunity.

25 I think that there's another point here that bears

1 emphasis in that counsel both in their opposition papers and 2 today have made reference to the expense of this and the fact 3 that Judge Glasser's earlier orders clearly recognize the 4 danger that this expense would pose. Well, Judge Glasser's 5 order also clearly recognized that there was an exception for 6 instances in which testimony could potentially be lost, and 7 that is the reason that we have sought to depose Mr. Bowers 8 whose age is quite advanced and like all of us grows more 9 advanced by the day and accordingly we don't feel that the 10 expense alone is something that exempts Mr. Bowers deposition 11 from the scope of Judge Glasser's order.

12 Now, how the Court wants to proceed, whether the 13 Court wants to hear argument in full on this today or at later 14 time, we leave that to Your Honor but we believe that this -- 15 the posture of the application should be such that once an 16 amended complaint is filed this can be adjudicated at the 17 earliest possible opportunity so that Mr. Bowers and all other 18 defendants who are in the case at that time can have the 19 opportunity to go forward with the deposition expeditiously.

20 THE COURT: I probably should have you asked you
21 first whether this changed things because what -- all I'm 22 hearing is that you're asking to hold the motion in abeyance.

23 MR. CUNHA: Essentially yes, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: And the -- until we see -- until you file
25 the amended complaint and you -- and the Court has a better

1 idea I suppose of a) what will be in the complaint, what the 2 scope of relevant testimony would be based on the claims in 3 the complaint, who the defendants will be so that the question
4 of costs will be better framed, and -- I don't know.
5 Basically I don't know if what you're saying is you're 6 withdrawing your motion but with clear notice that you're 7 going to seek a ruling as soon as the amended complaint is 8 filed. Is that the posture we're in? Because if you're not 9 withdrawing the motion then what do I do, just not rule? Is 10 that what you're --

11 MR. CUNHA: Well, I think Your Honor can hold the 12 motion in abeyance for the remaining period of time in which 13 we have to amend. We would certainly not be withdrawing the 14 application. I think it would be counterproductive and indeed 15 would engender unnecessary expense to have us make an entirely 16 new application which would essentially be a carbon copy of 17 the last one and for defendants to oppose it.

18 THE COURT: Right. For defendants to do anything -- 19 well, what's the reaction of defendants?

20 [Mr. Wing away from microphone.]

21 MR. WING: Your Honor, could I suggest [inaudible] I 22 think is file this complaint by around the first of January.
23 Could I suggest that we have until the 20th to submit 24 something in writing to the Court as to what our position will 25 be in light of [inaudible]?

1 THE COURT: Sounds pretty reasonable.

2 MR. HAYES: We would not object to that.

3 THE COURT: Then let's do that. So the motion will 4 just remain -- I don't know what category it goes into under 5 our new electronic case filing system. We'll figure that out.
6 Well, does it make sense then for submissions to be made 7 January 20th and then have a conference shortly after that or 8 should I even gather everybody together? I mean in a sense 9 just coming here -- for everybody to come down is sort of a 10 costly undertaking too. Maybe I can just give you a chance to 11 further your opposition and give the Government a chance to 12 respond to that and then make a decision based on that because 13 my guess is -- well, just thinking -- speculating there's 14 probably going to be a motion to dismiss at least some portion 15 of the new -- the amended complaint. I will know more about 16 that by January 20th I suppose.

17 There could indeed be plenty of proceedings 18 ongoing -- I guess what I'm saying is this. Let me try to be 19 again a little bit more succinct. Once an amended complaint 20 filed we'll be in my view in the same posture we were in 21 before the dismissal. Some, more or less. A stay in place
22 and a request to -- I don't say ignore the stay but a request 23 to have a deposition notwithstanding that stay based on the 24 age of the plaintiff -- of the witness.

25 So that's the posture I would see the motion at that

1 point and I'm -- I think that's a reasonable way to proceed.
2 The 20th for your papers; 30th for any opposition.

3 MR. HAYES: That would be fine, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Okay. I guess that pretty much brings us
5 to a close, right, as far -- I won't schedule any further 6 conferences right now. That will be done depending on further 7 developments. So thank you very much.

8 MR. HAYES: Your Honor, if I can. Richard Hayes.
9 One brief point and I apologize but I'll -- with perhaps one 10 exception defendants' arguments were while the United States 11 might disagree with those arguments we're within the lines but 12 Mr. Wing made a point that the United States brought this case 13 and litigating this case without any regard to expense, 14 without any -- I don't have the exact words but something to 15 the effect of the cost to the public or something like that.
16 We just strenuously note our objection to that kind of 17 reckless comment that has nothing to do with any of the merits
18 of anything that we were here discussing, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: Well, I don't recall that being -- I 20 remember somebody saying that expenses is less of a -- at 21 least monetary expenses less of a concern for the Government.
22 I mean it's going to the Government's calculus because -- but 23 on the other hand since the defendants are spending money -- 24 that's the kind of expense that I would be focusing on in any 25 event. I'm not going to make a judgment about whether the

1 defendant or the plaintiff, the Government is acting in the 2 best interest of the public or not. So to the extent that 3 such a comment was made it doesn't really affect my decision.
4 Not that -- I don't recall the comment being made but if it
5 was it didn't resinate anyway.

6 All right. So thank you.
